What is Middletown?

Middletown is anywhere and everywhere, the sort of place you'd expect to find Everymen and Everywomen on Every corner. Will Eno's beautiful, witty prose knits a series of vignettes together, weaving a story of a seemingly quaint town whose characters are quietly suffering huge crises.

John Dodge, cycling through hobbies and earning a living doing menial labor, finds the middle of his life without meaning. This naturally leads him to consider how his life will end, and, dangerously, if he should bring the end about himself. Mrs. Swanson, a newcomer in town, spends her time preparing for the arrival of her baby, handling it all on her own as Mr. Swanson is (always) out of town on business. When their trajectories cross paths, they must navigate how the other's story weaves into their own. The townspeople –Cop, Librarian, Mechanic, Doctors, Landscaper – rightfully carry out their duties while grappling with their own place in the tapestry of life.

The plot itself is simple; it is the journey to get there that becomes complex. The production team recommends that you read the script (a quick read!) in its entirety to best understand the what and the how of Middletown; the what is easily laid out, the how is harder to summarize here.

Consider these questions as you read: who is stuck in the middle, dwelling too much on their beginning or their end? Who relishes in the present? And how does the absence of something help a character (or the audience) to appreciate that something even more?

Content warning:

The Mechanic - The script states that the Mechanic enters a scene with "ceremonial dress" in his arms. This is Native American dress which he puts on and does a dance. Some changes to this will be adopted as agreed upon by the playwright to avoid cultural appropriation. The dance will still take place but dance ability is not required. A willingness to move in dancelike fashion with the help of a choreographer is necessary. He drinks alcohol in the show and sees a doctor about pain medicine. It is alluded to that he struggles with drugs but it is not conclusive.

John Dodge - The character struggles with suicidal ideation and attempts suicide at one point. This attempt is offstage but he does discuss this with the Female Doctor character onstage. He later has a reaction to drugs administered in the hospital and dies on stage.

Cop and Landscaper - The character discusses participation in "rough" behavior and "bad moods" which implies some level of aggression in their behavior as a cop. The character also mimes shooting the Landscaper in the head using finger guns. Please consider this when auditioning for these roles.

Content to consider:

- Romantic relationships
- Mild profanity
- Staged violence
- Discussions or portrayals of murder, suicide, religion, and God
- Depictions of alcohol consumption
- References to pregnancy and childbirth
- Scenes involving death or grief

While technicians are not acting out these characters on stage, this can be challenging material to work on. Communicating openly and honestly will not affect your participation in this show.

AUDITION PROCESS

WHO CAN AUDITION FOR TECH?

The All State play is open to audition for all Thespian and Future Thespians grades 9th-12th for all technical roles.

REHEARSALS

Due to the nature of this show's rehearsal process, students are encouraged to participate in the all state production as well as their local high school productions. The production team will be utilizing both in person and virtual rehearsals to accommodate best for thespians and their schools. Rehearsals are mainly on Saturdays to avoid school day conflicts.The current rehearsal schedule is currently set at this link (https://docs.google.com/document/d/11eJEkvD7p3_6uXgsbZh98o5JDSG-vamzstze8A93Xt0/edit?usp=sharing) and will be solidified once a cast is set. Please list any conflicts on your performer application so we may best schedule rehearsals.

LOCATIONS

Because the continuation of the All-State Thespians program was approved in early July and because many schools are still on break, we have not yet secured rehearsal sites for all our dates but we will be doing so shortly. ALL rehearsals will take place at middle and high schools in and around the Indianapolis area. Sites will go no further north than Noblesville High School and no further south than Franklin Community High School.

Indiana Thespians

All-State Thespians Calendar

The current schedule has many TBD dates and locations. Indiana Thespians has a location for each day of in-person rehearsal but it is our plan to include more schools on our calendar. Locations, therefore, are TBD, not the dates.

Looking through the schedule, you will see that there are many rehearsals where we are asking for your availability and will choose the best date for the cast and crew. Please communicate your most open availability.

If we change the schedule, we will only shorten rehearsal times or cut rehearsals. We will never add them.

TECHNICAL APPLICATION

The complete play and audition materials are available on the Indiana Thespians website.

Interested students must fill out the technical application and submit your audition material using this link (https://forms.gle/qupN77yG9ftuQbP86)

The application is in 6 parts which are each explained below

Section 1 - Basic Information

This section collects your personal and contact information so the production team can identify and communicate with you.

You'll typically provide:

- Full legal name
- Preferred name (if applicable)
- Pronouns
- Thespian troupe number
- High school name
- Current grade level
- Height
- Languages spoken
- Email address
- Phone number
- Parent/guardian contact information
- Emergency contacts

Section 2: Technician Preferences

This section helps the directors understand the types of positions you're interested in. The directors use this information to cast tech positions responsibly.

You will be asked about your preferred technician positions as well as answer some questions regarding your leadership, teamwork, and ability to work independently.

Section 3: Conflicts

This is one of the most important sections of the application.

You should report only conflicts that absolutely cannot be changed.

The application explains that:

- Minimal or no conflicts are strongly preferred.
- Missing more than one full rehearsal may make you ineligible.
- The rehearsal schedule is built around the conflicts reported here.
- New conflicts added later generally will not be excused except for emergencies or serious illness.
- Unexcused absences may result in removal from the production.

You should list:

- School-required events
- Previously scheduled family commitments
- Medical appointments that cannot be rescheduled
- Religious obligations
- College visits
- Athletic commitments that are mandatory and unavoidable

Rehearsals will be held at middle and high schools throughout the Indianapolis area, generally ranging from Franklin Community High School in the south to Noblesville High School in the north.

The current rehearsal schedule is set at this link (https://docs.google.com/document/d/11eJEkvD7p3_6uXgsbZh98o5JDSG-vamzstze8A93Xt0/edit?usp=sharing) and will be solidified once a cast is set.

Section 4 and 5: Application Materials

This section is where you submit all required materials.

The complete play and audition materials are available on the Indiana Thespians website.

Required uploads include:

• Professional or school headshot • Theatre résumé • Statement of Interest	• Work Samples • Descriptions of Work Samples

Work Samples:

Work samples showcase your artistic and technical skills through examples of previous work. For each sample, include a brief description explaining what it is, when it was created, and your specific role or contributions, especially if it was a collaborative project. You may include descriptions within the work sample or upload a separate document. Be sure to highlight the skills, techniques, and creative choices demonstrated in each sample.

Additional Materials

Your troupe director must submit a recommendation before the deadline. This is found on the Indiana Thespians Website.You may also submit an optional recommendation from a former director or theatr teacher.

Section 6: Commitment and Parent Permission

The final section confirms that you understand the responsibilities of participating in the All-State Thespians Program.

By signing, you acknowledge that:

- You have read all the audition requirements.
- You agree to attend rehearsals and performances.
- You understand the attendance policy.
- You accept the responsibilities of being selected.
- You will perform the role assigned to you unless restrictions were noted in your casting preferences.
- Your parent or guardian also acknowledges the rehearsal schedule, attendance expectations, transportation responsibilities, and commitment required if you are selected.

This section ends with digital signatures from both the applicant and a parent or guardian, confirming acceptance of the program's expectations and commitment.

Thank you for your interest in the Indiana Thespians All State production of Middletown and we look forward to your audition.
